

Austin powers a snake tale

THE “snake whisperer” is coming to Austin Cove estate in South Yunderup.

The Satterley Property Group says snakes may not be to everyone’s liking, but they are part of our ecological make-up and maybe we should learn a bit more about the slithering, scaly creatures.

Satterley has organised a Free Family Fun Day at Austin Cove Baptist College on Thursday at which noted reptile expert Paul Kenyon will share his expertise.

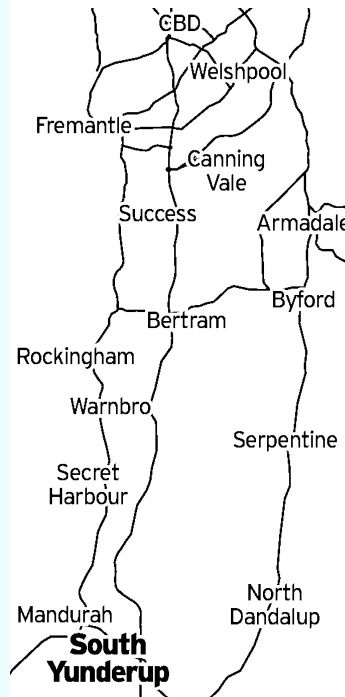

The developers say Mr Kenyon is a registered “snake relocater”.

That means he has a licence to remove and re-home reptiles in accordance with Department of Environment and Conservation regulations.

Apart from the session devoted to demystifying snakes there will be a Kids’ Sports Activity with “Sam the Action Man” and a free sausage sizzle.

Mr Kenyon will tell how to be safe around snakes and people will be invited hold a snake.

Parental supervision is essential, as are bookings because numbers are limited. For more information call Satterley’s Austin Cove community development co-ordinator Lorien Doherty on 9368 9103 or email loriend@satterley.com.au

Snake whisperer Paul Kenyon is bringing some of his friends to Austin Cove in South Yunderup.